FAQ —

Q: How does remote video monitoring differ from traditional security cameras?

A: Remote video monitoring combines advanced surveillance technology with real-time human intervention. Unlike traditional security cameras that passively record footage for later review, our system employs trained operators who actively watch camera feeds in real time, allowing for immediate response to potential threats or suspicious activities.

Security Tip — Smart Access Control

Use biometric systems or mobile-based access for enhanced security and convenient management of employee access. Integrating smart access control not only streamlines entry but also provides detailed logs of access activity, ensuring both security and accountability.
